

Anonymizing your manuscript for double-blind peer review

Checklist for authors

- Do not include names or affiliations anywhere in the manuscript or Supplementary Information.
- Ensure there is no author information in the metadata of any of the submitted files. This information is usually added automatically from the identity information on your computer. In many commonly used programmes, such as Word, author information is displayed (and can be edited) in the “File” tab under “properties”.
- When referring to your own work within the manuscript, use neutral terminology: that is, replace phrases like “as we have shown before” with “has been shown before” or similar.
- Check the figures for appearance of any author names.
- Any Acknowledgments or Author information/contributions should be placed in the cover letter, and NOT in the manuscript. The information can be transferred after completion of the peer review process. Please also state in the cover letter the order in which authors should appear on the manuscript in the event of publication.
